FCC,
I cannot think of one good reason to not "allow" satellite radio to provide local content. Not one.

Innovation always has enemies - and those enemies are always those trying to protect turf they view as harming their own pocketbook. But in the end, those who fought it the most usually end up better off.

That's the case with Satellite Radio. Leave it alone. Let free enterprise and American ingenuity flourish and we'll all be better off. Squash innovation and the big-dollar tyrants will win, holding the rest of us hostage to their personal whim.
